

Great Egret — A large white bird, the Great Egret often wades through water looking for fish. In the late 1800s, it was hunted for its elegant feathers and came close to extinction. The Great Egret became a symbol for nature conservation and is the symbol for the National Audubon Society.

Colors: white with a yellow beak and black legs.